Walter F. Sharpe, proprietor of the Palace of Sweets makes announcement this week of the re-opening of the Palace of Sweets on Friday of next week which will be December 10.

A reception between the hours of 3:30 and 5 p. m. will be held on Friday, December 10. "I am deeply grateful for the assistance given me by all who helped me to save a portion of my stock on last Wednesday during the fire. In times like this one appreciates his friends more than he can express. I will open again next week and on Friday will hold a reception to my friends and patrons. Palace of Sweets service will be better than ever. I try to please and am here to serve the people. I ask and invite the public to greet me next Friday."

RIGHT ARM SEVERED IN PRESS; IS RECOVERING

ACCIDENT AT WEEMS GIN AT ABOUT 9 O'CLOCK THURSDAY MORNING

Arthur Hugh (Dutch) Baskin lost his right arm above the elbow as a result of an accident at Weems gin at 9 o'clock this morning.

The arm was caught in a press and severed just below the elbow. When he reached the hospital a few minutes later it was necessary to amputate the arm above the elbow leaving about five or six inches of the limb.

Arthur had been hauling at the Weems plant for several months. He was at the press assisting the operations when his arm was caught. The press closing tight clipped the arm off and at the same time cut the hand almost clear at the wrist. A portion of the sweater and the glove was on the limb when taken from the press.

Rushed to the hospital the loss of blood was not as great as expected and Mr. Baskin was doing nicely an hour or two later. He is strong and robust and very healthy and his iron nerve and endurance helped him thru in good order.

The many friends of Mr. Baskin and the families of Baskin will be deeply grieved at his misfortune. Mr. Baskin is highly esteemed by his friends. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Baskin.

Mr. Baskin will be at the hospital for some time where he will receive the best of care and attention.

FEDERATION OF CLUBS TO BE PERFECTED HERE

ALL CHURCH CLUBS ASKED TO MEET FOR PERFECTING ORGANIZATION

A federation of Cameron's church women is to be effected this week, Friday at 3:30 o'clock, when all the women of all the churches are asked to meet at the Baptist annex.

All women are urged to be present.

The above is a reproduction of an interesting antique preserved in the portfolio of Giles L. Avriett, Cameron, Texas.

Recently the famous smile of Chief Monta Thomas of Aggie proclivities is conspicuous for its absence and his erstwhile onery looking companion has developed into a sleek and fat long horned steer—fattened exclusively on Aggie meat.

Is enough to make most any one laugh

His loyalty to the school he holds so dear
Is known by people both far and near

While faith in his school is apparently boundless
Yet every one agrees his reason is groundless

And while this spirit may remain staunch and true
The recent defeat took the pep out of Montague.

PROHIBITION FORCES LINE UP FOR FIGHT

DR. R. H. BENNETT WILL LECTURE HERE MONDAY NIGHT DECEMBER 13

The Anti-Saloon League has arranged for an address here by Dr. R. H. Bennett of Georgia, one of the outstanding preachers of the Methodist church, Monday night, December 13.

G. H. Lewis, assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League was in Cameron Wednesday to arrange for meeting.

The service will be held in the Methodist church. The address of Dr. Bennett will have for its theme "Obedience to Law." and the assistant superintendent said the league is very anxious to get the voters out for the the meeting.

The Anti-Saloon League anticipates a revival of the old battle between prohibition forces and the anti-prohibition forces. Especially guarded is the league against the possible nomination of Al Smith of New York, avowed wet, or any other candidate favoring modification of the dry laws.

The meeting in Cameron Monday night December 13 will be one of a series of such meetings to be held in various parts of the state, a part of the campaign begun by the Anti-Saloon League to oppose the return of liquor in any form.

Bread Alone not Sufficient; Man Must Cultivate Fields Not of Earth, if he Lives

There are fields that do not yield bread but must be cultivated by man if he is to look beyond the sordid things of earth and live. He cannot live by bread alone. His development, happiness and life depend upon his quest of the higher things, so declared Rev. H. G. Kenney, of the Presbyterian church in his Thanksgiving sermon at the Baptist Church Wednesday night, November 24. The sermon was a delightful departure from the usual.

"I have always had a holy horror of ruts, and repeating the things which have been said many times before me. "I found myself especially thinking of this when I came to prepare this sermon. All of us know the usual order of a Thanksgiving sermon: We thank God for our daily bread, and as we sit here thousands are crying for bread. We thank God for health, and yet there are thousands whom He has not given health. We thank God for His blessings; but the truth is the things we term "God's blessings" are very unevenly distributed so far as the human eye can see, and we have no other eyes through which we can look. I have long since learned that preaching, if it is to be vital, must be as

NAUSEA

This and Other Troubles Relieved By Black-Draught.

Mrs. Ada Blackmar, of Alexander City, Ala., writes: "From time to time, I would have spells of nausea . . . . . which would put me to bed. I would turn a dull, yellow color and, for days at a time, would have no appetite. Everything I ate sickened me.

"My mother had been a user of Black-Draught for years, so while I was at home, visiting, she asked me why I did not try Black-Draught for my troubles.

"I began taking a small dose, three times a day, before meals. I kept this up for several weeks, and it was just a little while before I began to notice an improvement in my condition.

"Black-Draught is certainly a fine medicine."

Proper Time Is Near for Planting and Pruning Fruit Trees

The next three months is the proper time for the planting and pruning of all shrubs, evergreens, fruit trees, ornamental and shade trees, vines, grapes and roses, says Otto Lang, prominent Dallas florist.

Fruit trees which are too full should be cleaned out so that sun and light may enter the center of the tree freely; also branches hanging too far to one side, which makes the tree bow should be cut off. Tall or irregular tops should be cut off to encourage growth for next year. Caution should be practiced here, for if all the tops or branches are cut from a fruit tree in the same year the fruit stock will be destroyed.

With flowing shrubs one should be careful not to prune during the winter any of the shrubs that bloom before the foliage comes out, and this applies to spirea or bridal wreath, cydonia japonica, buring bush, the yellow jasmine, flowering peach brunis pissardi or purple leaf plum, flowering almond, quince bush honeysuckle, etc. The following should be pruned heavy, as the flowers are made on new wood:

Crepe myrtle, tamarix, vitex or chaste tree, bird of paradise, buddlia or butterfly bush and others. There are also many evergreen, flowering shrubs, most of which need to be pruned, but it will not hurt to prune them, such as abelia, hardy salvia and photenias. There are many evergreen shrubs and hedges which may be pruned or left to let mature take its course, many of which, such as the Amoor River South, the ligustrum japonica, euonymous japonica would grow too tall if they were not pruned. The boxwood, wax leaf lihudytum, creeping cedars and dwarf arbor vitaes need no pruning, while some of the tall arbor vitaes, red cedars, Arizona cypress and others can stand shearing and pruning to make them more symmetrical.

In regard to roses there are thousands of varieties with nearly every color and shade although the best nurseryman grows but twenty-five to fifty varieties.

In planting roses no matter how large or tall the bush, cut it down 8 to 12 inches from the ground and leave but three to six stems of the best wood, firm the soil thoroughly and give all the water the hole or depression will hold. Evergreens and a few flowering shrubs are now planted next to the house and the rosebed is planted in the open in a formal garden or sunken garden in a round bed.

A heavy soil is much better and roses will last longer, especially if some sandy loam and well-rooted fertilizer can be worked into black waxy or heavy soil. Plant them eighteen to twenty-four inches apart each way and do not just pinch off the faded rose on the bush, but cut the stems down to about two or three inches of where it started. In this way you will always have longer stem flowers and larger roses.

WHAT DO YOU CALL IT?

Why is it that of the children born about fifty years ago, one is today, President of the United tates, another is door keeper in the White House? One is the head of the Bethlehem Steel Works, another a worker in his factory? One the best known and most successful banker, another a street cleaner? One a wealthy and popular merchant, another his credit customer? It is for the most part a question of training. The one knows, the other does not. One has the confidence that comes from thorough business training, the other has not. One is trained in the elements of business procedure and has the qualitiec of honesty, industry, the faculty of imagination and the power to go ahead on his initiative while the other has not. Such training is largely incidental. Please bear in mind that the Byrne Commercial College gives special attention to incidental training. Outside of our text books. We give much instruction in manners, morals, business conduct and business philosophy. No student leaves our school without a high regard for accuracy, honesty, thoroughness and industry. In our finishing departments, we teach all modern office devices and make all work as much like that of a business office as is possible. All students are confronted with the problem of business and are required to solve them. The atmosphere of business with which the student is constantly surrounded, stimulates greatly the development of business men and women. It is difficult to express in words, the value of such intensely practical education both to the student and the employer. Business men of the Southwest have learned to look to the Byrne Commercial College for really efficient office help. Write the Byrne Commercial College, Dallas, for catalogue and advise with the editor of this paper.

COLLIER RETURNS TO PRISON; NO PARDON IS IN SIGHT AT PRESENT

Wichita Falls, Tex., Nov. 29.—Frank Collier, former mayor of Wichita Falls, convicted of manslaughter in connection with the slaying of his son-in-law, Elzie Robertson, returned to the penitentiary Saturday to continue serving his three year sentence. He had been at home on a 30-day furlough granted by Governor Ferguson to allow him to recuperate from an attack of influenza.

Advices from Austin stated that no pardon was in sight, in spite of the general feeling here that Collier would not return to the penitentiary to serve his sentence. This opinion was strengthened by the pardon of Mrs. Collier shortly after her husband was granted a furlough.

VOLSTED LAW IS AGAIN SUSTAINED

SUPREME COURT'S DECISION HOLDS MAXIMUM ON LIQUOR PRESCRIPTIONS LEGAL

Washington, Nov. 29.—By a 5 to 4 decision, the supreme court Monday upheld the right of the government to limit the quantity of whiskey which may be prescribed for patients by physicians.

In a case brought by Dr. Samuel W. Lambert of New York, which has long been regarded as one of the most important tests to which the Volstead act has been subjected, the majority of the court ruled that the restriction of physicians to one pint of whiskey each 10 days for a patient was not an unlawful interference with the practice of medicine.

Justice Sutherland delivered the dissenting opinion, and was joined by Justices McReynolds, Stone and Butler. They contended that the court's opinion had transferred the control of medical practice from the states to congress.

The opinion of the court, handed down by Justice Brandeis, declared that the eighteenth amendment, besides prohibiting the manufacture sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes, "confers upon congress by clause 2, in terms, the power to enforce prohibition by appropriate legislation."

"That limiting the amount of liquor which may be prescribed for medical purposes, is a provision adopted to promote the purpose of the amendment is clear," the decision says. That the provision is not arbitrary appears from the evidence considered by congress, which embodies, among other things, the lessons of half a century of experience, in the several states, in dealing with liquor."

The opinion asserted that "evidence disclosed that practicing physicians differ about the value of malt, vinous and spirituous liquors for medicinal purposes, but that the preponderating opinion is against their use for such purposes and that among those who prescribe them there are some who are disposed to give prescriptions where the real purpose is to divert the liquor to beverage uses."

The dissenting opinion, delivered by Justice Sutherland, said he did not doubt the authority of congress to regulate the disposal of intoxicating liquors for medicinal use, so as to prevent evasions of the law, but that as the record now stands, it can not prohibit the legitimate prescription of spirituous and vinous liquors for medicine, as this statute attempts to do.

"Because this statute, by fixing inadequate prescriptions, prohibits to the extent of such inadequacies, the legitimate prescription of spirituous and vinous liquors for medicinal purposes, it exceeds the power of congress, invades those exclusively reserved to the states and is not appropriate legislation to enforce the 18th amendment."

McCOWN-GREEN

The marriage of Miss Frances Green of Hearne to Mr. Wiltz McCown of Edinburg was solemnized in Hearne Saturday, November 19. Mr. McCown is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. McCown of Cameron and has many friends in Cameron and throughout the state who will be interested in his marriage. The following account of the wedding was taken from the Hearne Democrat:

On Saturday, November 19, at high noon, Miss Frances Green, daughter of John W. Green, was given in marriage to J. Wiltz McCown of Edinburg.

The Baptist church where the marriage ceremony was read by Reverend C. E. Bullock, was a bower of autumnal beauty in recognition of the nuptial event.

The chancel rail was outlined with small white chrysanthemums intermingled with touches of green, while at the steps directly in line with the altar, built of green ferns, were floor baskets of the same lovely blooms.

Quantities of white and yellow chrysanthemums were grouped about the chancel enclosure in tall floor baskets and pedestals holding tulle bowed baskets, filled with exquisite snow white chrysanthemums, completed the effective arrangement.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Miss Helen Newton sang "O, Promise Me" and Mrs. Claud Slaughter was accompanist for all the nuptial music.

Lohengrin's Wedding March announced the wedding hour as Philip Reid of Cameron and Edwin Biggerstaff, ushers, took their places at the chancel, and immediately after they were stationed came Reverend Bullock, the best man, Clifton Jenness of Cameron, and the bride-groom, to await at the altar, the coming of the bride and her attendant.

Miss Hixie Green, sister of the bride who was maid of honor, wore a lovely frock of violet velvet with trimming of metal cloth with violet hues predominating and her arm bouquet was of pink carnations and ferns with wide streamers of pink satin ribbon.

The bride, who entered with her father, wore a chic costume of beige crepe Roma with wide girdle and side bow of crepe back satin of slightly varying shade.

The sleeves showed puffs of deep cream lace, with gold banding interwoven, confined to a narrow cuff, which with a lace collar and short jabot, touched with gold banding, harmonized. Her hat was a close fitting model of black satin with gold metal lace crown, shot with blending colors.

The bridal bouquet was of Columbia roses, lilies of the valley, and lace fern with shower of pink ribbons.

After the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. McCown spent a short while with a group of relatives in the home of the bride's father, before leaving for South Texas. They will be at home in Edinburg when their bridal trip is concluded.

An array of handsome and useful gifts attested the wide popularity of the young couple.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding were, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. McCown, Misses Maggie Reed and Kathryn McCown, Master J. McCown, Mrs. Meta McCown, Miss Margaret McCown, Mrs. A. J. Montgomery, Mrs. Trent Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Tyson, Mrs. Miller, Miss Sallie Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jenness, Philip Reid of Cameron; Mrs. M. A. Biggerstaff of Calvert; Miss Hazel Lewis of Cameron.

THANKSGIVING BRIDGE DINNER

Marked by the beauty of Thanksgiving decoration and attractive environment was 'the Bridge dinner complimenting Miss Harriet Henderson who will become the bride of Hamilton Moore Bonnet of Dallas, December 10th, given by Mrs. T. J. Denson at her home on East 13th Street. Four tables were arranged for bridge with score cards, place cards and accessories carrying out the Thanksgiving motif and color scheme. Beautiful chrysanthemums were used in the inviting reception suite, and in the dining room the table was centered with a silver bowl of roses and silver candle sticks with red tapers gleaming over the pretty table scene.

After a series of interesting games of bridge, the guests were served an attractive four course turkey dinner. Between courses prophesies were read for the bride, which afforded much laughter and fun. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. J. C. Martin.

The hostess' gift to the honoree was a recipe book attractively tied with a bridal bouquet.

THE BLUE BIRD CHORAL CLUB

This year Yoe High has a very progressive choral club. One that is doing some valuable work and at the same time is having a good time. Miss Eloise Rogers is the director and she thoroughly understands the work.

The club has made two public appearances already. One was at the Business and Professional Women's club and the other at the Yoe High Majestic. Both appearances received very favorable comment.

True to their name, "The Blue Birds" are the costumes of the choral club which consists of bright blue skirts, white Peter Pan blouses, blue ties and blue tams with white feathers stuck jauntily in them.

The club recently enjoyed a splendid hike and breakfast out at the Country Club and in the near future there will be other social events. At present the girls are working on a program for a musical to be given before Christmas and on their club room which they are beautifying.

In the spring the club plans to visit some of the surrounding towns and give programs.

The Blue-Birds are doing their part to put Yoe High on the map as an up and coming High School.

THE TREBLE CLEF CLUB

The Junior Music Club re-organized for the winter several weeks ago at a meeting in the home of their sponsor, Miss Bess Du Bose. The new officers are:

Dora Emily Moore, President.

Harriet Flinn, Reporter.

The time of meeting was set for 4:30 o'clock on the first and third Saturdays of the month.. The lives of great composers together with their works will comprise the course of study. The club had a social hour just following the business session and the hostess served tea and sandwiches.

The next meeting will be on December 4 at the home of Katherine Atkinson.

WALKER'S CREEK CARNIVAL

One of the most carefully planned and well carried out programs in the history of Walker's Creek school was held there Friday night, November 19 in the form of a school carnival. Those present felt that they were indeed at a real carnival. And no wonder with tents scattered everywhere and children calling out their wares it gave the atmosphere of a real carnival.

A doll rack drew a large crowd; but most interesting of all the attractions was a house of wonder in which Miss Sidney Beth Renfro carried the astonished patrons from one surprise to another concluding their trip with a brief and witty fortune telling. The patrons furnished refreshments for the members of the Junior Band.

The treat of the evening was the music furnished by Mr. Farleigh and his band boys and girls. The success of the carnival depended largely on Mr. Simme Burns who was spokesman for the occasion. He proved himself an able speaker for the occasion. The school is realizing benefits accruing from the funds raised in the form of new library books, basket ball equipment and other necessities.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Home Demonstration Club of Jones Prairie met Monday afternoon, November 22 at the teacherage.

Chevrolet Cars Are Aids to Patrol of The Border Police

Their uniforms may not be as brilliant, but their work is just as colorful as that of the Canadian Mounted Police. Their organization is too young to have the traditions of the Texas Ranger behind it but they are making interesting history every day. They ride a beat that stretches from the pleasant coasts and cliffs below San Diego to the blazing heat of Sonora desert east of Yuma over trails that even those hard bit Spanish pioneers of long ago christened the "Journado del Muerto," journey of death.

They are the boys of the Border Patrol of the United States Immigration Service, who, 24 hours out of the 24, and 365 days of the year, watch the Mexican Border for Uncle Sam to see that no unwanted aliens "crash the gate," and make their way illegally into this country.

Four or five years ago there were only sixteen men employed on the Border Patrol between Tia Juana and the point sixty miles east of Yuma where the Southern California district ends. Then came the passage of the Johnson bill restricted immigration from the European nations, and where the patrol before had the single task of keeping out smuggled Chinese, there was added the much more difficult job of barring the way against natives of a dozen European nations. Entrance to Mexico is open to any alien and from Mexico thousands of Europeans who have been unable to obtain legal entry into the United States yearly attempt to cross the line.

Today there are 71 men in the Border Patrol in this district. They are mounted, not on horses, but with a fleet of Chevrolet cars, recently purchased for their use by the government. Hitherto the men have owned their own cars but a late change in policy led to the purchase of the Chevrolet fleet for their use.

Few persons are aware of the tight watch maintained on lonely mountain roads, on dim tracks through the desert or the high meadow lands of San Diego's back country. You never know where you will find the Border Patrol at work, which, of course, is decidely inconvenient for the men who make a business of smuggling aliens.

The very first trip of one of the Chevrolet fleet, for example, resulted in the arrest of three smugglers and two Chinese. Patrol Inspectors E. and R. V. Armstrong were camped in the Warner Ranch meadows, where old Butterfield trail forks from the San Diago road and goes east over the pass down the valley of the San Felipe.

In the chilly November dawn they halted a car with a single passenger. A search showed nothing suspicious in the car, and the driver, obviously nervous, was told to proceed. A few moments later came a second car, but it held four passengers, two of them Chinese and two alleged smugglers. Realizing that the first car was a scout car, Spies held the prisoners while Armstrong leaped into the Chevrolet and set out after the scout car. In spit of the fact that his car was stiff and new and that the fleeing car had a long headstart, Armstrong caught his man at Oak Grove. The three alleged smugglers face the prospect of a two year jail sentence and the Chinese will be deported.

From 90 to 150 arrests per month are made by the men in the Border Patrol service working along the Mexican line. Perhaps half of these are Chinese and the remainder are chiefly aliens from the south of Europe. While the smuggling of aliens has scarcely reached the excellent degree of organization that the bootlegging industry has attained, it is practiced by an even more ruthless class of citizen.

Their price scale runs from $100 to $1000, depending upon where the smuggled individual is landed, and the difficulties attending it. Border reports have it that smugglers are quite as apt to murder their customers as to make an attempt to deliver them across the line, and that many an alien is summarily ushered into quite another country than that to which he sought entrance.

It is no easy job, this Border Patrol service and has more than its share of long hours, danger and discomfort. It requires a degree if initiative, of tact, of quick observation and resolute courage that not every applicant for the work possesses. The men long in the service develop an uncanny skill in picking out aliens.

Their initiative is proven by an act of the Imperial Valley Inspector, who through an emergency faced the task of guarding four roads at once. He flooded two of the roads from the irrigation canals, commanded a crow bar and tore up a bridge on a third and stood guard on the fourth until he was relieved. It put some travelers to a little inconvenience but there was no hole in the border net that night.

THIEF BREAKS INTO BARTOSCH JEWELRY STORE LAST MONDAY NIGHT

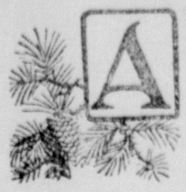
Someone entered the A. F. Bartosch jewelry store here Monday night and appropriated to their own use some cases and combination sets which Mr. Bartosch failed to lock up in the safe the evening before. The thief made his way into the store by prizing the lock on the back door with some form of thin instrument. The screw hook on the screen door was straightened out instead of the screw being pulled, indicating that considerable force was used. No clue has been found to the guilty person.—Thorndale Champion.

TURKEYS BRINGING 28c POUND

The turkey market opened up on Monday morning of this week at 28c per pound being paid by local buyers. Several instances have been noted that as much as $150 or more has been paid to individuals for turkeys on one transaction. It is said that the cold storage supply of turkeys is lower than at this time last year but the supply of birds on the farms is much larger than a year ago. It is difficult to guess the trend of the market later under the circumstances.—Thorndale Champion.

Old Songs of Yule

by Frances Marshall Morgan



AS CHRISTMAS EVE draws near in every civilized land there is the customary revival of interest in the beloved old songs and carols that for hundreds of years have gladdened the hearts of men.

Back into the mists of the ages must we delve in our search for records of the first Christmas carol. We find that the pagans had chants that they sang at the season of the year when days were shortest. There is the song of Isaiah, beginning, "Sing, Oh Heaven, Be Joyful, Oh Earth!" And there is the song of Micah, dating seven centuries before Christ's birth. Tradition says that the oldest of all Christian hymns was sung by the angels above the fields of Bethlehem and later by the barbarian martyrs in the arena at Rome.

Today the singing of Christmas carols is almost a universal custom. There is scarce a community boasting a little red school house, or church, where will not gather, on Christmas Eve, the farmers with rosy-cheeked families to lustily join in the biggest event of the whole year, the Christmas community "sing." Church choirs in the villages and cities, as usual, will render their special Christmas programs. Yet, is there one among us who does not best love the custom of singing the old songs beneath the candle-lit window, for "sweet charity's sake"?

With the thought of the little bands of singers soon to start on their pilgrimages, from door to door, giving of their talents to the poor, there comes to mind the old English custom still observed in rural communities, although the cities know it no more. These little bands of carolers, called waits, sang the identical songs that every Englishman loves today, although they were first heard centuries ago. It is one of the picturesque English customs that have survived through the ages.

The radio's discovery brought with it an immense revival of interest in the Christmas carol. Thousands upon thousands of folk who will sit at their firesides on Christmas Eve eager to "listen in" are becoming familiar with the ancient carols and Christmas songs in a way that could not be possible before its advent. Last year the broadcasting of Christmas songs by world famous artists was one of the most delightful events connected with the pleasures of the season. The old carols were the features of the programs. This year, as last, the most beautiful Christmas song will probably be "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," Phillips Brooks' masterpiece, the most popular of all the many and lovely numbers sent over the air. This song is probably the best loved modern composition, dealing with the birth of Christ. "When Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," is the oldest carol written in our language. It is the work of Nahum Tate, poet laureate of England in 1692.

France, Italy, Wales and Ireland it is said, are among the countries that cling closest to the custom of carol singing. France calls her Christmas songs "noels," from "natilis" which signified, originally a cry of joy at Christmas.

Many of the famous old Christmas songs are cheerful, heartwarming and suggestive of the good times of the season. However, the most beautiful and best loved are the carols that breathe a spirit of reverence and tell in simple words the story of the manger and God's gift to the whole world.

Austin, Nov. 30.—State departments, institutions and other branches of the State government, have requested $55,648,221.28 for the biennium 1928-29, and the board of control in its budget to be submitted to the Fortieth Legislature in January, recommends appropriations aggregating $37,748,058.58.

The board of control eliminated $17,900,162 from the requested total, the budget shows.

The state's estimated available revenue, as furnished to the board of control by Comptroller S. H. Terrell for the next biennium is $47,186,165.

"If the 35 cent tax rate is adopted, there will be a margin between the recommendation of the board of control and the estimated available revenue of $9,438,106," a board statement reads, "the margin being left for appropriations to the public schools."

Roads Not In It

"These figures do not take into account the request or recommendation for the State Highway Department. as that money does not come out of the general revenue of the State.

"The amount recommended for the highway dpartment is $1,656,700."

The Thirty-ninth Legislature at its regular session made appropriations aggregating about $36,000,000 and the special session held this Fall increased the aggregate to approximately $42,000,000, there being supplemental appropriations totalling about $2,500,000 for deficiency appropriations authorized by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Salaries Up A Bit

The amount requested of the board of control to be submitted to the Thirty-ninth Legislature was $41,630,013 82, and the board recommended $31,399,334.26, but the Legislature's appropriations amount to more than $36,000,000. The board eliminated $10,230,679 exclusive of the State Highway Department.

In the board of control's recommendations to the Fortieth Legislature there has been a general increase of salaries at all of the educational institutions, but the building programs requested by the institutions have been materially reduced.

Salaries recommended at the institutions for presidents are: University of Texas, $10,000; A. & M. College, $9,000; Texas Technological College, $8,000, an increase from $7,500; College of Industrial Arts, $7,500. North Texas State Teachers' College, $7,000, an increase from $4,500, with all other state teachers' colleges, an increase from $4,500 to $8,000, except Sul Ross, which would be increased from $4,500 to 6,000.

Its the Biggest Slash

"The board of control believes that,' the statement read, "with the exception of the building program, as asked for each institution, the estimates and needs of the State departments and institutions are well taken care of.

"In its recommendation to the Legislature, the board states that it has found it necessary to eliminate more than $17,000,000 from the request; which is a total of more than $7,000,000 larger than the amount eliminated two years ago.

"This was necessary in order to bring the budget within estimated revenue of the State, and to leave to the Forteith Legislature a sufficient margin to take care of the supplemental fund, rural aid and other matters."

Commercial Club Would Promote Pecan Growth

The Commercial Club has asked the committee in charge to report a plan to promote the pecan industry in this county at the next regular meeting of the club.

The Club will in all probability interest the members in obtaining the co-operation of some farmer well located to plant five or ten acres in pecans to prove the commercial value of the nuts.

The club also is considering a plan to secure the services of an expert from A. & M. College to bud a better variety of pecans on the native stock of the county.

It is said that the native pecan crop in Milam County is as good as can be found anywhere in Texas. The annual sale of pecans in Cameron is said to be about $25,000. It is also said that in other sections the crop sale is large.

CLUB URGES FARMERS TO BUY BROOD SOWS

TO SHIP IN CAR AND SELL THEM AT COST TO MILAM FARMERS

The Commercial Club is interested in the sale of blooded brood sows to the farmers of the trade territory in order to increase the meat supply and to carry out the general plans of economizing on the farm.

At the meeting Monday night the president, J. W. Coleman reported a meeting held Saturday at which time a representative of the stock yards at Fort Worth proposed the sale to the club of a car load of high grade brood sows.

The club voted to instruct the committee on agriculture including county agent Banzhaf, and county agent, Williams for the negro farmers, to make a canvas of the farmers and find out where these hogs can be placed.

The sows will weigh about 150 pounds and will be sold at 15 cents per pound which will be cost price. The sows will be uniform in size and breeding and the selection will be equal with every farmer. Any farmer desiring a good brood sow or two should see the agent or get in touch with Wm. Cobb, chairman of the committee.

When enough orders have been obtained the hogs will be ordered shipped. There will be about 80 in the car and the total cost will be about $2000.

At this time the hog stock is practically depleted in this county. Many have tried to get brood sows to rebuild the stock. The farmers now have the opportunity to get them. See the committee members or the county agents at once.

DANCE AT WAYSIDE FRIDAY

The dance at Wayside Inn Friday night will attract a large crowd that will be in the city for the big football game between Marlin and Caldwell. Mr. Cammer is making arrangements for a large crowd and several special attractions are being planned. The management has secured the J. D. Lewis orchestra for the dance and this is a guarantee for good music. Come out and enjoy yourself.

T A. FISHER TO LEAD BAPTIST BIBLE CLASS

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT TO DISCUSS BOOK OF RUTH

The class met last Sunday morning with twenty members present.

By special request of the pastor time was given immediately after matters of business were disposed of to a discussion of "Tithing" as taught in the word of God. This subject was presented in a most able manner by the teacher of the class, Mr. Cable.

Following the discussion of "Tithing" the lesson of the day on Gideon and his three hundred men, was discussed in a brief way by the teacher and members of the class.

The subject of the lesson for next Sunday is, "The Message of the Book of Ruth" in which we have a very pleasing and instructive picture of a virtuous and religious life in a dark period of history.

We are very happy to announce that the lesson for next Sunday will be brought to the class by that most excellent layman of the Methodist Church, T. A. Fisher, and we urge that every member of the class avail himself of the privilege of hearing this discussion.

Visitors are cordially welcome.

Club Would Give Away Land to A. & M. Student

In order to demonstrate and develop the productivity of Milam county soil, especially the rich sandy land east of the river, the Commercial Club is considering the matter of offering five or ten acres as a gift to a graduate of A. & M. College who will come to Milam county and prove the value of scientific farming.

This plan is pursued in other localities of the state. The club believes the quality of, and in Milam is as good as can be found anywhere in Texas. The land across the river is adopted to truck growing and for fruits. Already some consideration is being given to the proposed grape industry on a large scale.

UPS AND DOWNS

Anybody can be poor. Life is full of ups and downs. The downs come, we must make the ups. We all feel like a down is on us now and are wondering about the up. The depression recently brought on has caused nearly everyone to change their plans. Many young people who had planned to attend some good business college are forced to be content with a home study course or wait another year and then conditions may be just as uncertain as now. Many others who had planned to remain where they were have found their footing shakey or entirely gone and in order to make a change must secure a business training by mail. The farmer boys and girls many of them are resolved not to take chances another year and will in some way "make the up" by securing a business training. If they can't go to school they will have "Uncle Sam" bring it to them. Money is necessary and business offers by far the surest opportunity for acquiring it. The Byrne Commercial College is the choice of all students who investigate fully the prospective merits of schools both for personal and correspondence instruction. They have specially arranged courses for correspondence teaching and they have their own individual methods of handling the work, that no other school can compete with. It is surprising how interesting home study work can be made and how quickly a course may be finished under their method and their own copyrighted systems.

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

A few cents buy a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.

THORNDALE BUSINESS MEN HOLD SESSION

COMMERCIAL CLUB HAS BUSY AND INTERESTING MEETING

The directors of the Thorndale Commercial Club failed to hold their regular weekly meeting on Thursday night of November 11, but met with renewed pep and interest again last Thursday night and made up for lost time by disposing of pending business and launching new work looking to community benefits.

Among the unfinished business was that of requesting Henry Ross, chairman of the agricultural committee, and Smith Summerlin, secretary of the club, to check up on all local entrants in the "More Cotton on Fewer Acres" contest at the earliest possible date. The plats of land cultivated by each contestant must be re-measured, the records of the yield, cost of cultivating, etc., must be recorded and certified to by the local committee in charge before the contestant has any standing before the state managers of the contest at Dallas. Mr. Ross and Mr. Summerlin will look after this work during the first of this week.

The club took cognizance of a complaint filed with the chairman of the committee on fire prevention to the effect that confusion results from the fact that every time the fire truck is recharged or tested out the siren whistle on the truck gives the fire alarm the same as when there is an actual fire. The club requested that the truck be fitted with a switch that would permit the whistle being disconnected when no alarm is needed. The cost of this will be small, it is said.

The Club also requested Chairman W. B. Elliott of the Fire Prevention Committee, to inspect the flues of all business houses and others as soon as it was possible for him to do so as a precaution against fire. The people of Thorndale are urged to co-operate with Mr. Elliott in this matter and give him any assistance within their power to a mutual advantage.

A resolution urging the citizens to co-operate with the club in discouraging the use of fire works on the streets of Thorndale during the holiday season. The resolution calls on parents to instruct and direct their boys to proper places for this pastime.

President Saller stated that he had a communication from the International Harvester Company offering Thorndale another 2 day short course in poultry and other allied subjects if the community wanted the course. The same people put on a short course in Thorndale six years ago and great and lasting good resulted from the lectures and demonstrations by specialists in their lines at that time. The Harvester Company furnishes the speakers at no cost to us and we are expected to furnish the hall in which to meet and a crowd to attend the meetings. The club voted to ask the Harvester Company to consider our application for one of the three courses which it plans for Texas this year. The short course will be held some time in January if Thorndale is successful in "getting in" on the proposition. More details of this will be given in the Champion later.

As a climax to the close of the meeting last week Chairman L. D. Barnes of the Charity Committee was asked to report, and he replied that he had nothing to report; that everybody seemed to be prosperous and his greatest cause for worry was to understand why he heard so much about "hard times." Mr. Barnes seemed to think the committee should be discharged to conserve their energy.—Thorndale Champion.

AGED MOTHER IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Mary Lehman, aged 83, died at the home of her son, Charlie Lehman, in Thorndale last Thursday, November 18, and was buried at Serbin, her old home, with Rev. Fisher, pastor of the Lutheran church of Giddings in charge of the service. Many relatives and friends from Thorndale attended the service.

Mrs. Lehman was born in Weisenberg, Germany, March 7, 1843, and came to America with her parents in 1855. She was only a child of 12 when the family landed at Houston, at which time yellow fever was raging and taking its toll of human life, and she and one brother were the only members of the family to survive this terrible scourge and death dealing disease which they experienced shortly after reaching Houston.

She was married to John Lehman in 1859 in Lee County where she made her home for a number of years. To this union nine children were born, three of whom preceded her to the grave. The surviving children are: Mrs. A. J. Urban, Charlie Lehman, Mrs. Charlie Wuensche of Thorndale; Mrs. Wm. Schubert of Rockdale; Mrs. P. A. Ramsel of San Antonio, and Henry Lehman of Giddings. Besides the children she leaves 33 grand children, 42 great-grand children and many relatives and friends. After spending several years at Serbin following her marriage the family made their home at Thorndale, returning to Giddings later where her husband died several years ago. At the time of her death she made her home here with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lehman and many Thorndale friends learned to love her better with the passing months.

The Champion joins the great host of friends in extending its sympathy to the bereaved family and close personal friends.—Thorndale Champion.

TERRY-WRIGHT

A wedding of interest to many friends was that of Mrss Martha Terry of San Gabriel to Gayle Wright, formerly of Austin but now of Lampasas, which took pace at the home of Mrs. Lanham Clark in Austin at 6 o'clock on November 16. Miss Terry has attended school in Austin for the past two years, being a member of the June 1926 graduating class of the Austin High School. Rev. L. H. Barton was the officiating minister, using the simple ring ceremony.

The brde was lovely attired in a blue going-away dress and corresponding accessories. The young people will make their home at Lampasas on their return from a wedding trip to Mexico.—Thorndale Champion.

Are You "Toxic?"

It Is Well, Then, to Learn the Importance of Good Elimination.

FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits a retention of waste poisons in the blood. Symptoms of this toxic condition are a dull, languid feeling, drowsy headaches and, sometimes, toxic backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many readers have learned the value of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, in this condition. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Baylor College she won distinction as a singer. The second year she was there she was honored by the Baylor Choral Club by being chosen as the president. She won fame in the many places over Texas and other States where the Baylor Club put on a program.

The Club here has about thirty splendid young voices, and they have been doing some hard work in preparing to entertain the people of Cameron ,and training for efficiency. You may expect some great singing next Sunday night. The Club is not to render a regular program, but is to take the place of the choir and sing the regular church hymns.

Miss Rogers will sing a solo.

VOLUNTEER DAY

December the 8th has been set for Volunteer Day. On this day there will be committees at the church to receive subscriptions to the Budget for 1927. It is hoped that the membership will respond to this call of their church. It is a reflection on a member to wait to be solicited by some other member of the church to do his duty. So let us charge our minds now to be on hand that day and make our subscription that day.

The week following this Volunteer Day, we will publish the names of those who come to the church on the given day and make a subscription of a definite amount to be paid to their church. Last year we published the names of all who came but some did not sign up for any amount, but just signed the card, so this year we will publish only the names of the subscribers of definite amounts. Will you be one of the Volunteers?

THE BUDGET FOR 1927

The following Budget was prepared by the Finance Committee some time ago; it was then submitted to the Board of Deacons and was unanimously approved by them and then submitted to the church and adopted by the church. December 8th is the day set for subscribing this budget. We want your co-operation in this part of our work.

To the Cameron Baptist Church:
Our Dear Friends:

As so many have written and have remembered us in various ways during Mr. Binford's illness, I feel that it is impossible to write each individual so I am takng this method of expressing our deep gratitude to our friends there.

You can never know how each message encouraged me, (I say me for he knew nothing of it for several days) and gave me the more faith. All day Wednesday the doctors said there was no hopes for his recovery, and it took deep faith for me to be submissive, and it was through your prayers and messages, and those of others that the burden was made lighter.

To-night he is on the road to recovery, and is mending rapidly. It is my impression, as well as others here that God has surely answered prayer, and has spared His servants life for some definite purpose. Will all of you yet remember us as you pray, that after complete recovery, we may press forward to the goal that our Savior has for us here in our new field.

Mr. Binford joins me in expressing our love and gratitude to you all, for you will never realize what it meant to our hearts in these dark hours.

May God's blessings ever be on you.

Mrs. Binford.

Dear Brother Hutcherson:

In reply to your letter in regard to Brother Black will say that he was our choir director for three years and we have never had a more popular director in our church. Brother Black is a Christian gentleman in every since of the word. He is educated, consecrated and has unusual good judgment and ability to get along with people.

He is not especially strong as a soloest, but he has a good leading voice. He understands music, and is a splendid organizer in the music department.

He did not serve as an Educatinal Director, but he has the qualities that go to make a good Educational Director. If the Decatur church were in the field for a musical and educational director, Brother Black would be the first man I would turn to. He is absolutely loyal to the pastor, and has a splendid co-operative spirit, and works to help carry all the interests of the church forward. I have never known a more dependable man.

I am sure that this letter will sound extravagant to you, but to me it is a conservative statement of facts.

With best personal wishes, I am yours truly,

R. E. BELL.

And They Are Wed on Christmas Day

No Time Is Lost by Cupid in Bringing Hilda and Jack Together.

By MARION R. REAGAN

HILDA MAY GIBBONS settled back in the rather comfortable chair of the pullman car, and, as the great train thundered out of the station, gave herself over to the none-too-satisfying thoughts of the prospects of her future. She was going home for the Christmas holidays. It was her first trip back in three and a half years, for it is an expensive journey from Massachusetts to Colorado, and it was really all the Gibbonses could do to pay Hilda's tuition at Wellesley. Such luxuries as trips home for vacations were simply out of the question. However, as this was her last year in school and she intended working in New York after graduation in June, the money had to be spared for her to see the family once more.

Her heart leaped at the thought of seeing her mother and father again, but fell just as suddenly when she thought of meeting all the young people of the town. The Gibbonses were poor and really never had had a place in Boulton society. Not recognized by the wealthier families, they were too proud to associate themselves with either the poorest or even the middle class of the town. Now that Hilda had been away at a big eastern college, however, she would probably be invited to the holiday parties of the wealthier set. Either accepting or declining the invitations would be a little awkward for her, she thought, after being spurned by them for so many years.

And there was that Jack Elkins, the son of the richest man in Boulton. Hilda particularly didn't care to see him. He was the "catch" of the county, for, besides being extremely rich, he was unusually attractive and had the gracious manners of a real gentleman. Hilda had always had a case on Jack, and the fact that she had never spoken to him and was simply not known by him, made it all the more intense. She used to dream about him when she was younger, and plan all sorts of meetings—happy occasions on which she was never at a loss for a witty phrase and on which she always completely "vamped" young Elkins.

And all this dreaming made her the more self-conscious. When she passed him on the street, for example, she would feel herself stiffening all over, and found it difficult even to walk normally, imagining he was looking at her. She always discovered when she looked back, however, that he had not really been looking at her at all, and was quite unconcernedly smoking his cigarette.

When the train stopped at Princeton Hilda felt a sudden tremor come over her. Jack was a student at Princeton and would probably be going home for Christmas. They might be riding on the same train! Almost unconsciously she leaned forward and looked into the narrow panel of the mirror to adjust her hat at the right angle.

She had just leaned back in her chair when the deep baritone of masculine voices informed her that several young men were on the platform of her train. The doors banged. The train moved on and a tall, well-dressed young man, preceded by a porter with a bag, passed her chair.

"Here, this is mine, isn't it?" he asked, indicating the chair exactly next to Hilda.

"Oh, yes, sah, yes, sah," answered the porter and quickly disposed of the baggage while the young man sank into the chair.

Timidly Hilda glanced in his direction. When she caught sight of him she couldn't suppress a little nervous cry of "oh!"

Jack Elkins turned. Hilda blushed a deep crimson and pretended not to see him. Jack continued to look at her for some seconds, evidently not displeased with the sight, and finally asked, "Pardon, but haven't I met you some place? Your face is so familiar!" And before Hilda could reply—"Oh, of course, now I know. You live in Boulton, don't you?"

"Yes, I live in Boulton," Hilda admitted stiffly, and put an end to what Elkins had hoped might develop into a conversation.

Almost an hour passed of complete silence between them. Then Elkins turned sharply in his chair. Something had gotten into his eye. Hilda offered her assistance and very carefully removed the annoying little cinder. The incident was enough to relieve her of her self-consciousness and their conversation became more genial. They discussed everything from poetry to politics. They had luncheon together on the train, and dinner. At the end of the evening when the porter came to make up their berths they said good-night, feeling they had known each other for years and years, and more than that—been in love forever.

Hilda was just the kind of girl Elkins had been hoping to meet. It was too preposterous to think of their both living almost side by side for all these years and never really meeting until now.

The next morning they had breakfast together and continued to talk for several hours—until the train finally arrived in Denver at noon.

Some of the ladies of Boulton, who had come into Denver to shop that day, were rather surprised to see young Jack Elkins and Hilda Gibbons in a large jewelry shop looking at diamond rings. But when they returned home that night and heard that most startling news—that Jack Elkins and

In a Large Diamond Shop, Looking at Diamond Rings.

Hilda Gibbons would be married Christmas morning, they were almost overcome.

Christmas morning when Hilda walked down the aisle of the little church, leaning slightly on Jack's arm, the envy of every girl in Boulton, the picture of perfect happiness, she turned to Jack. "Dear, we'll be the leaders of Boulton society now; let's always invite everybody to our parties—rich and poor—shall we?"

"Of course, dear; we shall do whatever you say," was his answer.

UPS AND DOWNS

Anybody can be poor. Life is full of ups and downs. The downs come, we must make the ups. We all feel like a down is on us now and are wondering about the up. The depression recently brought on has caused nearly everyone to change their plans. Many young people who had planned to attend some good business college are forced to be content with a home study course or wait another year and then conditions may be just as uncertain as now. Many others who had planned to remain where they were have found their footing shakey or entirely gone and in order to make a change must secure a business training by mail. The farmer boys and girls many of them are resolved not to take chances another year and will in some way "make the up" by securing a business training. If they can't go to school they will have "Uncle Sam" bring it to them. Money is necessary and business offers by far the surest opportunity for acquiring it. The Byrne Commercial College is the choice of all students who investigate fully the prospective merits of schools both for personal and correspondence instruction. They have specially arranged courses for correspondence teaching and they have their own individual methods of handling the work, that no other school can compete with. It is surprising how interesting home study work can be made and how quickly a course may be finished under their method and their own copyrighted systems.

Turkeys Are Bringing More Monetary Returns Now Than Cotton on Many Texas Farms

BY VICTOR H. SCHOFFELMAYER
Agricultural Editor of The News

Another powerful argument for diversification is this year's Texas turkey crop, which is conservatively estimated at $10,000,000 by State Department officials. The all-cotton farmer take notice.

About 50 per cent of the crop has been shipped to the markets of the East and North where tens of thousands of birds were consumed for Thanksgiving, but an equal number will move within the next few weeks to grace the Christmas tables of the Nation.

The price to farmers has averaged about 25c a pound, or 27c to 28c a pound delivered at dressing plants. The consumers' market in New York, for instance, is 44c to 46c a pound. in Dallas it was 41c a pound for dressed birds last week.

While turkey-raising is largely confined to the counties comprising what is known as the Edwards Plateau, with considerable production in South and Southwest Texas and less in West Texas and Central Texas, there is no reason why the turkey industry should not embrace larger territory.

A few years ago North Texas raised turkeys successfully, and there were several large flocks in Dallas county, notably one on the Worthington farm near Mesquite. Because turkeys after the first week of hatching, practically raise themselves, they should have a place on hundreds of farms and thus add easy money to the farm income.

While Cuero in DeWitt County for years has claimed to be the center of the Texas turkey trade, Brady in McCulloch County has made rapid strides in turkey concentration and now stages an annual turkey celebration second to none. Flocks of 200 birds per farm are not uncommon in the Brady section. Some of these flocks have returned income of $500 this year When this is compared with the average loss from cotton it is significant.

2,000 Cars of Birds

According to J. Austen Hunter, State market news specialist at San Antonio, some 1,500 to 1,800 cars of dressed turkeys will be shipped out of Texas for the season. Dressers, Mr. Hunter reports, state that they believe the shipments will total 2,000 cars, while the railroads are more conservative.

To date some 600 cars of dressed turkeys for the Thanksgiving celebration, not to mention numerous express and truck shipments to Texas and Southern cities, of which it is difficult to keep accurate track.

"The claim of a prospective movement of 2,000 cars," writes Mr. Hunter to The News, "is slightly strong, but not if made to include less than carlot shipments and near-dy consumption. prices to farmers have averaged 27c to 28c per pound at dressing plants or 25c a pound at the farm. Cold weather in the North and East will permit liberal display prior to Thanksgiving and Christmas in such centers as New York, Philidelphia, Boston and Chicago, and consequently will improve the clearance of birds."

Mr. Hunter calls attention to the new style barrel containing an approximate 250 net as against 275 in the old style hoop barrel. The new barrel averages 80 to the car.

The recent general rains in Texas have held back some turkey shipments for the Christmas trade and buyers state that this will make sure of increased business for the Christmas trade.

Brady Section Active

From Brady comes word that dressing plants there report the average weight of toms at 18 pounds and hens at 12 pounds. At 25c to the producer this would be respectively $4.50 to $3 per bird. Ten toms would almost equal the price of a bale of cotton. Many toms weigh twenty or more pounds, of course, and there are reports that 1-year-old gobblers weighing almost thirty pounds.

Fifty to 200 turkeys constitute the average flock in McCulloch county, which means that farmers in that section of Texas are receiving from $200 to $300 a flock on the average.

Although the start of the season was anything but propitious on account of wet weather, which is fatal to young turkeys, care of the flocks saved the majority of the young birds although disease destroyed thousands.

Many a farmer this year will not receive the cost of raising his cotton crop, but if he has a flock of turkeys he is assured a fair income from very little labor. Turkeys, once gotten over their tender period, make their way quiet successfully. They roam over the range and feed largely on insects. Many farmers around Brady, San Saba and Menard find turkeys valuable as destroyers of grasshoppers and have not had to poison these pests for the last two years.

Estimates made by Brady dressing plants show that farmers in that territory have realized not less than $500,000 from the sale of turkeys this season. The "Heart of Texas" district will ship approximately 225 carloads of dressed turkeys, or enough to supply 5,000,000 persons with a Thanksgiving dinner. One-third of this total will be marketed at Brady and the balance at dressing plants at other points in that section.

Brady staged the annual "Turkey Trot" recently, at which 15,000 persons attended. There were appropriate floats depicting phases of the turkey industry and there was an army of live birds which marched through the streets.

Lamar Turkeys Success

From Lamar County comes word that Neal Kennemer of Blantistown has made a success of raising bronze turkeys for the last five years

"I started in with common stock some years ago because I knew nothing about turkeys then," says Mr. Kennemer. "My experience with weak, undersized birds was costly because they were light in weight at maturity and too many died before they became grown. At the end of four years I changed to better stock.

"Across the county line at Brookston George Steel and his wife were considered the outstanding turkey raisers of North Texas. I had seen their turkeys at the fair and noticed their size, color and vigor. The biggest gobbler I then raised weighed twenty-three pounds at 2 years old, while theirs weighed around 30 pounds at the age of one year and forty at the age of two years. I used to buy my birds from turkey houses and from peddlers' wagons, and that nearly ruined me. Later I bought from the Steeles and one tom from Joe Fry who had also had Steel stock. I kept seven of my best young hens and from that start I increased the size and vitality of my flock about forty per cent and my income about 300 per cent annually.

"I showed at Paris that fall and won first prize on all young classes. I sold $465 worth of turkeys and befor I thought $100 was a good annual income. I then got rid of all my scrubs and bought four hens and a gobbler from Southwest Texas and paid $125 for them. This is my fourth year with purebred turkeys.

Stray Dogs Harmful

"Our greatest troubles are from stray dogs, hail and overflows. I was in the hail section this spring and lost 85 per cent of my flock and only raised twenty-two grown turkeys, but I have sold $165 worth of stock this fall and could have sold $1,000 worth if I could have supplied the demand, but my stock is needed on my farm."

Mr. Kennemer diversifies. H usually raises twenty acres of cotton, fifteen acres of corn and five acres of oats. He has a large garden with 9 months of vegetables to eat or sell. He raises all the Irish and sweet potatoes his family consumes.

There is ample room for more turkeys on Texas farms than are now grown. The market could consume more birds than are offered and there is talk of popularizing the turkey, not only during Thanksgiving and Christmas Holidays, but throughout the fall and winter, which would increase demand.

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Bread Alone Not Sufficient; Man Must Cultivate Fields Not of Earth, if He Lives

high as heaven, and as broad as the needs of the human heart.

"These things I have tried to keep in mind as I wrote this sermon. To many of you, this sermon may be wholly inadequate, and even inappropriate, for I shall lead you to the points. I wish to make in a round-about way. Let me ask you, then, to accept as the text some words recorded in the 19th Psalm first verse: "The Heavens declare the glory of God."

"A man tills the soil for his physical food. He must till the sky for his spiritual food. But alas, there are thousands in this world who think that man lives by bread alone, a certain eminent authority to the contrary notwithstanding.

"I think we might have been farther along with our spiritual development had it not been that some short sighted, "painfully practical" man coined the phrase, "Star Gazers." Now because such a phrase has been pawned off on us we have been ashamed to till the sky.

"I am often reminded of a thing St. Luke records for us in the book of Acts. He is telling us about the storm at sea in which St. Paul was caught. Now Paul and the captain disagreed, and St. Luke informs us that "the people believed the captain of the ship rather than St. Paul." And that is just as true today. We are yet far more willing to listen to the so-called "hard-headed business men" than we are to the man with a far reaching vision. Just how we came by that disposition is beyond my knowledge. what one conceives a man to be. If a

"It all depends, I suppose, upon man is simply a physical being, then, one is right, I am sure, in placing the daily bread at the head of the list of important things. If, however, one think of a man in terms of character and fine spiritual qualities, then he is bound to take into consideration the things which we class as "visionary". For there certainly can be no growth in spiritual qualities without great vision.

"Now I like very much the freedom with which the psalmist roam about in the universe. They were not bound by any cannons, or any external authority whatever. They feel free to till the sky for food for the soul. When, therefore, I find this psalmist tilling the sky, I am not at all surprised to find evidence running all through the Psalms of soul growth. For the man who so takes God into his life is sure to develop a God-like character.

"The Heavens declare the glory of God." As one reads those stately words, his mind comes down the centuries until it stands face to face with Jesus Christ. With Jesus everything was to be viewed in the light of God, birds and flowers, rain and lightning, mountains and valleys all spoke to Him of his Father who was in Heaven, and so He tried to teach His disciples.

"Let us, then, on this Thanksgiving Eve, forget that we are living in a painfully practical world, and come back and stand with the psalmist out gazing in the open up at the stars. Perhaps they can remind us of God's mercy and care. When a man looks up at the stars, he learns that man with all his learning and all his power is quite insignificant. I once heard a great teacher say that there ought to be a law requiring all young people to study astronomy for at least one year. Without it, he said, they are likely to attach too much importance to themselves. And man, then, who goes out on a clear night and takes a good look at the stars is not likely to get the "big head". Relativity.

"It was this same psalmist who, looking up at the stars, was moved to write, "When I consider the heavens, the stars, the moon and the sun, what is man that Thou art mindful of him? Now, you and I are living in an age that contributes much toward "big headedness". We easily take up the idea that "we are the people."

"A great man of science recently was reported to have said, "In the early days of civilization man needed a God; but in this day of great progress in all forms of knowledge, man no longer needs a God, he is quite big enough himself. Now, what that man needed to do was to look up at the stars and there he would have seen wonders surpassing any of modern science.

"What I am trying to say is that we should ever be thankful that the Christian God is infinitely bigger than man; and that His goodness is greater than ours, not less.

"When we look up at the stars there is another lesson which we may learn, and that is the accuracy with which God works. The Stars do not dwell in a land of hit and miss, and an eclipse is not an accidental happening. Up in the sky things are so accurate that we can know the very minute the sun will rise ten thousand years from today. Relativity again.

"In the North on a clear night there are ever so many more stars visible than in this country. I have seen them many times as thick in the sky as specks on a guinea egg. Now, does it not strike you as strange that with all those stars revolving in space that they never collide? Each one has his appointed course. Things do not run in the sky in an accidental way, everything is ordered and runs on schedule time.

"Now, I do not know how it is with you; but I know there are times when I very much need to remember this great lesson of the accuracy with which God works. Sometimes I get to thinking of the untold millions of people who have lived, are now living and are yet to live, then it is I get to wondering if God will take notice of me. And then I think of those stars whom no man can number, and God looks after each one of them. If, then, God looks after the stars, certainly he can look after His children. Surely I shall not be lost in the crowd.

"John Wesley, whom we all love, learned this same great lesson, only he learned it from another source. He belonged to a family of 21 children, I believe; and his mother always found time to minister to needs of each one. "If a poor human creature could look after so many children," he said, surely the infinite God can care for all." And so he rested his faith on that.

"I have been trying to tell you then that we shall be ungrateful indeed if we are not constantly thankful for the fact that we shall not be lost in the crowd. That God never makes a mistake.

"Lastly, when we look up at the stars, we learn the true value of man. I said a while back that we are in this age to over estimate ourselves, which is true. We are also likely to under estimate ourselves. Back in my boyhood days we had an old pastor who was very fond of telling us that we were "worms in the dust." Coming from my pastor I thought that must be the proper way to think of myself. I tried hard to do it; but somehow I simply could not believe that I was just that. Something told me that I was much greater than a "worm in the dust." When man looks up at the stars and thinks, he is doing something which they with all their beauty can not do. We can study them, but they cannot study us, then we are greater by far than they.

"It was this same psalmist who, after looking up at the stars, was moved to write, "Thou hast created man only a little lower than the angels." It was Jesus who said, "How much more valuable is a man than a sheep?" And it was St. Paul who said, "We are God's workmanship.

"Now, when a man learns that lesson it will have a two-fold effect upon him. 1. He will himself live a better life, 2. He will be more thoughtful of his fellowmen, for they too share his glory.

"I feel sure that you have been able to see my last point: That man should ever be grateful for the fact that he is God's greatest creation, and that in token of that God has crowned man with immortality.

"The Heavens declare the glory of God", let us then at this Thanksgiving season look up at the stars. No matter who may whisper about "star gazing". That whisper comes only from the short sighted.

KNIGHTS PYTHIAS HOLD ANNUAL ROLL CALL HERE

The rank of Knighthood was conferred upon the following: Bert Miller, Bob Terry, Elmo Baggett, Lee Tag, Harry Tag, Albert Triggs, Jr., Robert McCown and William Baskin.

Not the least enjoyable feature of the occasion was the serving of a delightful lunch.

THOUSANDS OF TOYS FILL CAMERON STORES AS CHRISTMAS APPROACHES

Toyland! "A child's world where business is play."

Gone are the days of crude toys which were whittled out of wood by grandfather, as he sat in the old wicker chair beside a huge fireplace; or created by an "ole negroo mammy," who had a knack for putting a vamp's face on a rag stuffed doll. No longer are toys considered a side issue to be thought of only a few weeks before the holidays. Rather, toy making has wedged its way into the commercial world until it commands the work and ingenuity of thousands of men and women .

Since the earliest stages of life it has been instinctive for the young to play. Even the wild animals romp and play in the woodland, converting pine cones, leaves, pebbles and sticks into playthings. There is always a lure to the lacy pattern weaved by the moonlight that beckons to a little puppy and makes it chase the shadows to and fro. Hence toys are no new things. Since there has been life there have been toys, of a kind: but the progressive nature of the modern generation of children has demanded that toys show the result of inventions and work of real art.

No great invention or discovery is offered the public unless a miniature is marketed in the toy department for the child. Toy musical instruments trains, airplanes and radios, which employ entire floors of the city's largest department stores.

The toys which interest the child of today might be classified as both educational and amusing. In the first division are the toys and games which require some ingenuity and forethought on the part of the child, such as instructive games, building materials, musical instruments and the like.

In the second class would come playthings for the little girl, who takes no greater delight than to sit by the hour playing with her dollie, changing its costumes to suit her own artistic tastes. Or playing in the little doll house which is large enough for her to crawl in where she may call herself mistress of all she surveys. In this class the ball and bat of the little boy, toys meant for play and play only.

Each season elaborate show windows are prepared by special window dressers for the entertainment and joy of the child. Dolls that whirl around and call "Ma-Ma" to the little girl who peerls longingly through the windows and anticipates the coming of 'ole' Saint Nick;" aeroplanes that fly about in the air like real ones; trains that speed through tunnels and over hills, whistling and ringing little bells and over to one side a real fire station which sounds the alarm and sends off firemen on fire engines that would inspire any courageous lad to help the cause of "fire prevention." All go to show the advancement toys have made in the last few years.

This year the Cameron shops offer the most remarkable display of toys that have ever been on the market. Whether for entertainment or as a Santa Claus helper, one may be guided to the home of the best toys by watching the advertisements of the Cameron Herald.

LANGE SLAYING CASE RECALLS KLAN DAYS

ABSENCE OF MATERIAL WITNESSES CAUSES DELAY OF TRIAL

Caldwell, Nov. 29.—When court was called here this morning for the beginning of the trial of Kinch Shelburne and Chas. Balke Jr., charged with the killing of Otto Lange at Somerville in May 1923, the courtroom was packed and many stood outside unable to gain admittance to the courtroom.

Judge J. B. Price, before whom the case will be tried, recessed court until 9 a. m. Tuesday on account of the absence of material witnesses.

A special venire of 150 members has been called, from which to select a jury.

Masked Men Enter Home

Otto Lange was slain during the heighth of the klan bitterness in the state. The killing caused a state-wide sensation. Lange was a farmer and lived on a 10-acre place about a mile from Somerville. On the night of July 2, he was at home with his wife, 67-year-old mother and 11-year-old daughter and other members of his family. He was at the time suffering of minor injuries received at the Santa Fe tie treating plant where he worked at times.

Four masked men entered the Lange home about 9 p. m. and attempted to drag him to a waiting automobile in which a fifth man, also masked, waited. Lange's aged mother and young daughter came to his rescue. In the struggle a shot was fired, according to the Lange family, by a short man wearing a khaki shirt. The bullet of .38 caliber, severed a finger on the hand of the child, who had her arms around her father, and pierced his lung. He died in a few minutes.

The masked men ran to the automobile and disappeared in the darkness. Lange's brother fired at them with a shotgun from the gallery of the house.

Sheriff Clint Lewis of Burleson county, assisted by Constable W. S. (Sledge) Houston, immediately began an investigation. T. W. Davidson, then lieutenant governor and at the acting governor during the absence from the state by Governor Pat M. Neff, began an investigation and sent Ranger Captains R. W. Aldrich and Frank Hamer to Somerville.

One of the first developments in the case was the establishing of the fact that on the night of the killing ten or a dozen automobiles loaded with men had assembled at the ball park, about a half-mile from the Lange home, and that one of the cars had left the park, apparently going to Langes home.

Excitement High

Excitement ran high in Somerville and vicinity for a number of weeks. Sheriff Burney Parker of Washington County and officers from other places were called in to assist in running down the perpetrators of the act. Mass meetings were held in the city, headed by Mayor Brodnax. Each succeeding grand jury investigated the case and the Ku Klux Klan offered a reward for the capture of the guilty parties, but no arrests were made until June 12, 1926.

On that day Kinch Shelburne and Charles Balke Jr., were arrested at the Santa Fe roundhouse, where they were employed, by sheriff Lewis and taken to Caldwell.

At the same time J. M. Shelburne, a brother of Kinch Shelburne, Sam Gaines, Davis Lauderdale and Buck Tuttle were taken into custody on charges of robbery by firearms, growing out of the taking of the ballot boxes used in a primary election at the small town of Merle, near Somerville. The boxes were later found in the basement of the court house at Caldwell.

Grand Jurors Witnesses

Numerous witnesses have been called by the state and by the defense. Among the witnesses are some 80 or 90 members of grand juries which have investigated the case.

The defense lawyers are headed by John M. Mathis, Sr., of Houston. Assisting him are E. P. Simmank of Giddings and Bowers & Bowers of Caldwell. The state is represented by District Attorney M. L. Harris of Som-Lennan, the later two of Waco.

The case has attracted much aterville, Lud Williams and Clay Metention and there is probably the biggest crowd in Caldwell that was ever in the little city.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas it has been our happy privilege to have the brotherly fellowship of Rev. R. S. Marshall for the past three years, and whereas according to the changing scenes of life he is now to leave us to take up his work in Nacogdoches, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we as his fellow pastors have learned to love and appreciate him as a brother in Christ.

2. That we hereby express to him our deep feeling of the loss that comes to us in his leaving.

3. That we most heartily commend him to the Christian Brotherhood and to the pastors of Nacogdoches as a Christian gentleman with a true shepherds heart, and with a brotherly cooperative spirit, worthy of full confidence of his brethren and as a man who seeks to promote the Kingdom of righteousness in a way that is helpful to all and hurtful to none of the brotherhood.

4. That we most heartily commend the good wife and children of our brother to all the Christian graces with those of whom they are to associate.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished Brother Marshall, each of the papers here, the pastor's conference of Nacogdoches and also the papers of Nacogdoches.
